Open throughout the year, it is also the venue for a programme of activities such as sports lessons, holiday camps and birthday parties.

MOTORING

When the Club was awarded its royal title by King Edward VII, it sealed the Club's status as the nation's oldest and most influential motoring organisation, where the early years were focused on promoting the motor car and its place in society.

Today the focus has shifted towards the membership, with a flourishing range of activities now being offered including automotive factory tours, motoring dinners at both clubhouses, participation in world-class concours events and drive-ins to Woodcote Park.

The extensive choice of member events during the year includes the Annual Motoring Dinner, Le Mans Dinner and London Motor Week Dinner, with guests including some of the highest profile leaders from the automotive and motorsport industries. The Club also recognises landmark achievements and anniversaries from the motoring world with bespoke celebration dinners.

The Club's motoring year reaches a crescendo at the end of October and beginning of November as London Motor Week takes centre stage. It is a diverse, week-long series of events and functions, including lectures, dinners and awards for members, guests and the wider motoring community, reflecting the Club's broad passion for motoring. The highlights of the week are the Regent Street Motor Show and the London to Brighton Veteran Car Run.

Within motoring there is also a growing range of events and activities for the motorcyclist, including ride-outs, hospitality at motorcycling championships and riding experiences both on and off road.

An eclectic range of vehicles adorns the rotunda at the Pall Mall clubhouse throughout the year, providing a special welcome for members and their guests as they arrive.

At Woodcote Park, the Old Barn has undergone award-winning restoration and has been transformed into the fabulous Motor House, which houses the Club's heritage fleet and an accompanying modern workshop to service it. A 1950s-style garage display has been created as a backdrop to one of Sir Stirling Moss's cars while exhibits and displays tracking the motoring history of the Club are displayed throughout the building. The Motor House has now also become a venue in which the Club hosts a number of its events, such as watching several Formula 1 races during the season.

Outside of member activities, the Club continues to develop and support automobilism through representation on the Fédération Internationale de l'Automobile (FIA), Motorsport UK and RAC Foundation.

The Club also awards a series of prestigious historic trophies and medals celebrating motoring achievements, including the Segrave Trophy, the Tourist Trophy, the Simms Medal, the Motoring Book of the Year, the Dewar Trophy, the Torrens Trophy and the Club's recently launched Historic Motoring Awards.

Reciprocal Clubs

Membership of the Club provides you with access to over 80 private members' clubs around the world. Whether you are travelling for business or pleasure, take advantage of this network of carefully selected clubs which offer a variety of facilities and services to suit your needs.

History of the Club

The Automobile Club of Great Britain, and later Ireland, was established by Frederick Simms in July 1897, to promote the automobile in society and to champion the interests of motorists, at a time when mechanical vehicles not propelled by horses were met with fear by the public.

In 1907 King Edward VII decreed that the Club be henceforth known as 'The Royal Automobile Club'. The Club's achievements on behalf of automobilism had already been considerable: in 1899 it had staged one of the first motor shows, in Richmond, and, in 1900, it had organised the 1,000 Mile Trial, with vehicles touring the country to market the automobile as a reliable means of transport.

The Club successfully campaigned for increased speed limits, vehicle registration and basic driving tests and, between 1908 and 1912, touring, legal and insurance services were introduced to aid the motorist.

In 1911, a grand, new, state-of-the-art clubhouse was opened at 89 Pall Mall and in 1913 Woodcote Park was purchased as a country clubhouse where large car gatherings and golf could take place.

The Club was also the birthplace of motorsport in the UK. In 1926, it organised the first British Grand Prix (at Brooklands) and, in 1950, the first Grand Prix at Silverstone.

However, the most famous motoring event in the Club's history is the annual London to Brighton Veteran Car Run, which the Club has organised since 1930. It still takes place on the first Sunday in November every year.

In 1999, the Club's Motoring Services division was sold, including the breakdown services.

As the oldest motoring club in the United Kingdom we enjoy celebrating our heritage whilst looking towards future developments, just as our pioneering members did.
