

THE ROYAL AUTOMOBILE CLUB MOTORING BOOK OF THE YEARS AWARDS 2024

Now in its eleventh consecutive year, the Motoring Book of the Year awards are recognised as the most prestigious to be bestowed in the automotive publishing industry.

The Club's motoring literature trophies recognise and celebrate the greatest books, authors and publishers of automotive-focused titles, and their importance in exploring and documenting the key events, vehicles and individuals who have helped shape the industry.

For 2024, the awards will feature four categories:

(1) Books about motor cars and motoring, costing no more than £50

An exceptional book with wide appeal and costing no more than £50

(2) Books about motor cars and motoring, with no price limit

An exceptional book which may be of specialist appeal and costing over £50

(3) Books on a motor sporting subject, costing no more than £50

An exceptional book with wide appeal and costing no more than £50

(4) Books on a motor sporting subject with no price limit

An exceptional book which may be of specialist appeal and costing over £50

In addition, two additional awards may be presented at the Club's discretion if the achievement can be justified.

Best Debut Author The judges will have the power to make an award for Best Debut Author. This is for a book from a previously unpublished author which has sufficient merit. A book may be written by a writer who has been published in magazines, newspapers and on-line, but not in book form.

Lifetime Achievement may be awarded to an individual who has made an outstanding contribution to motoring literature. The Lifetime Achievement award is chosen by the Club and is not open to entries, but suggestions are encouraged for consideration.

JUDGES

The judging process will include recommendations from Britain's most experienced motoring book reviewers and buyers, including Gordon Cruickshank of Motor Sport, Mark Dixon of Octane, Mick Walsh of Classic & Sports Car, Ian Titchmarsh of the BRDC and, representing the book retail sector, Ben Horton of specialist bookseller Horton's Books and Christian Whitehead of famous Oxford bookstore Blackwells. The six expert judges are led by non-voting committee chairman Simon Taylor.

The fully independent judges are to nominate books that have impressed with their depth of the research, originality of subject, exceptional quality of writing and pictures or outstanding entertainment value.

The judges will nominate three finalists in each of the four categories, all of which will be featured in the awards ceremony, when the overall winner of the category will be announced.

One of the sixteen shortlisted nominees from the four categories will win the overall Book of the Year. That book will appear as one of the three finalists in its category but will not win its category.

RULES AND CONDITIONS OF ENTRY

The award is open for books first published in the English language and first physically (i.e., not digitally) in the UK between 1 July 2023 and 30 June 2024 (12 months). These should be first editions, not reprints or re-issues.

Entrants have the option to enter their titles into one of the four categories. There is no limit on the number of entries (books) submitted.

Entries must be in book form. Seven copies of each book, accompanied by a completed entry form, must be submitted to the Chairman and judges as soon as practicable after publication date, and in any case no later than Wednesday 31 July. All books supplied are not returnable. To ensure books are given the fullest consideration in every detail, the Club urges all automotive authors and publishers to submit an eligible title as soon as it is published.

However, if a judge has already received a copy of that book for review in his magazine, the publisher will not be expected to supply a further copy to him.

The publisher should enter a book in the category he thinks is most relevant to his book. If the judges feel a book has been entered in the wrong category, they have the right to move it into the appropriate category.

In very exceptional circumstances, if the cover price of a book is so high as to render it totally unviable for the publisher to supply copies to the judges, they may inform the chairman of the judges, via Rebecca Leppard, that they would like to submit the book in pdf form. Please kindly note that PDFs can prevent the judges from being able to assess fully the book's quality and presentation to be able to judge knowledgeably.

If permission is granted, it will be on proviso that the publisher ensures that an actual copy is made available on the day of the final judging meeting for consideration. This may take the form of the publisher supplying a copy to the Royal Automobile Club library.

Judges may consider a book not submitted but reviewed during the judging period provided it conforms with the qualifications cited in these rules, and subject to the publisher's agreement (which will be taken to include that of the author/s) to submit copies on request.

Books will not be eligible in a category where the author is a member of the judging panel.

SHORTLISTS AND WINNERS
