Single Malt Whiskys

THE FLAVOUR MAP

The Flavour Map is a distillation of knowledge from some of Scotland's most experienced professionals which demonstrates that in practice, when it comes to flavour in a glass, all malt whiskies can be plotted on a simple grid.

The Flavour Map makes it easy to identify where the subtle similarities and distinct differences can be found, so you can explore the whisky landscape with confidence. On the vertical axis, whiskies are plotted as to how smoky or delicate they are, while the horizontal axis plots whiskies on their light or rich qualities. If, for example, you love Glenlivet 12yo (both light and delicate) you might enjoy the nuances of Glen Elgin or Dalwhinnie. Or for a complete contrast, go for a malt from the other side of the map, such as the smoky and rich Lagavulin.

Single Malt Whiskys

REGIONS AND FLAVOUR

As well as giving an accurate account of taste, The Flavour Map also shows where a whisky comes from when used alongside the regional colour map. Simply match a region and whisky by colour to discover local similarities and some intriguing exceptions.

You can now explore further by choosing new whiskies that lie close to personal favourites, or by heading off across the map in an entirely new direction.

Single Malt Whiskys

HIGHLAND AND SPEYSIDE

Highland Malt Whiskies, made north of the imaginary line drawn from Dundee in the East to Greenock in the West, share a firm, dry character with slight peatiness and saltiness. The Northern area of the Highlands tends to produce whiskies of a spicier character. The Eastern area, which is more sheltered from the coastal winds, and into the Midlands, produce whiskies of a fruitier character.
